

The Brewers' Hall, refurbished in 2011, is located in Aldermanbury Square, an oasis amongst the high rise modernity of the City of London. This welcome open space can be found between the Guildhall and London Wall. The Brewers' Company is one of the oldest of the City of London Guilds or Livery Companies with origins dating back to the medieval period.

From the cool marble of the ground floor lobby an oak staircase leads to a circular reception area on the first floor. Here the principal rooms interconnect to form an adaptable space consisting of the Committee Room, the Court Room and the Livery Hall.

The wood panelled Hall and Court Room create an air of elegance and sophistication providing a venue suitable for cocktails, presentations, formal lunches or dinner.

Brewers' Hall is located mid way between the Olympic Park and the West End. Mainline stations within one mile include City Thames Link, Blackfriars, London Bridge and Liverpool Street. Nearest underground stations are Moorgate, Mansion House and St Pauls.
